Todas las actividades que realizan a diario los profesionales de Fisioterapia deben promover el respeto a su integridad, la preservación de su salud, la de sus pacientes, así como la protección del medio ambiente en que labora. Se debe recordar que en todas las actividades intra y extrahospitalarias hay riesgos biológicos, ambientales, socio-culturales, que incrementan de forma significativa el peligro de sufrir accidentes laborales que pueden finalizar en discapacidad. En general, un factor de riesgo es una condición interna o externa que aumenta la probabilidad de ocurrencia de un evento en particular, como pueden ser una enfermedad o un accidente, las variables que se tienen en cuenta para determinar los factores de riesgo en el trabajo son: las condiciones del entorno físico, el manejo y el trabajo con sustancias potencialmente contaminantes, las condiciones de seguridad, el factor de presión física y mental y la organización del trabajo. Las medidas preventivas que mantienen o controlan estos factores de riesgo laborales logran la reducción de impactos nocivos, asegurando que el desarrollo o producto final de dichos procedimientos no atenten contra la salud y la seguridad de los trabajadores de la salud, de los pacientes, de los visitantes y del medio ambiente. La clasificación de los riesgos a los cuales está expuesta la comunidad fisioterapéutica depende de las diferentes áreas de influencia de su desempeño laboral.
